Hundreds line streets for Sunday's parade

County rings in nation's birthday

HAPPY BIRTHDAY PARADE—Hundreds of Fayette County well-wishers lined the parade route along Court Street Sunday to view Washington C.H.'s salute to the nation on its 200th birthday. The Burnett-Ducey Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 4964 color guard led the 45-minute procession from Willard Street to the Fayette County Fairgrounds.

Miss Firecracker, Little Uncle Sam, horseshoes, frogs and bubble gum contests—each had a winner. But the overall winner of the bicentennial celebration was Fayette County.

At a probable dollar loss, the Washington C.H. Jaycees provided all county residents with a two-day slate of activities which will not soon be forgotten.

How could anyone forget that Washington C.H.'s own Ray Downing, purchasing agent for Craig's Department Store is the adult bubble gum blowing champion of Fayette County?

The Jaycees provided something for everyone. The appeal of many activities was almost universal. Other contests, attractions and activities drew more limited interest.

Undoubtedly the two largest crowd-pleasers were the bicentennial parade Sunday afternoon and the fireworks display that evening.

The parade jammed the downtown area of Washington C.H. with people, and the fireworks display surrounded the Fayette County Fairgrounds with cars.

More than 60 units traveled from Willard Street to the Fayette County Fairgrounds. The parade stepped out just after the ringing of bells at 2 p.m.

Led by grand marshal B.E. Kelley and his wife, Elva, the parade took more than 45 minutes to pass each point along the route.

From the character of the "Spirit of '76," to a red, white, and blue cement truck, parade units presented the history of American progress over the past 200 years.

Parade vehicles included antique cars, tractors, and horse-driven buggy. Political freedom has been a cornerstone of American society, and both the Republicans and Democratic parties had floats in the parade.

Fireworks lit the sky from 10 p.m. until approximately 10:30 p.m. The display came to a resounding halt when a tremendous volley closed the show.

The final volley also alerted area law-enforcement officers that the worst part of their weekend was about to begin.

Cars had gathered along the CCC Highway-W, Leesburg Avenue, and had swarmed the Fayette County Fairgrounds to view the Jaycees' display.

When the show concluded, officers were summoned to nearly every major intersection within a half a mile of the Fairgrounds to direct traffic. The stream of flashing red, white and blue lights on police and Sheriff's vehicles offered a display of their own.

Sunday's activities began with open-air services on the lawn of the Fayette County Courthouse.

Sponsored by the Fayette County Ministerial Association, the services were inter-denominational, and all area churches were invited to participate. At least eight area congregations were actively involved.

The guest speaker was the Rev. Ralph Wolford, pastor of First Baptist Church in Washington C.H. He addressed the crowd of more than 600 on liberty.

He noted that while Americans celebrate their 200th year of freedom, Dale Butler, who served as master of ceremonies of the contest, is ready to present Miss Chrisman with her flowers while Kim Pentzer, the 1975 winner, looks on. they should be aware the responsibility it requires.

The Rev. Mr. Wolford stressed that American freedom is to extend to all, not only those who agree with the majority. He pointed out that the first settlers came to what is now the United States to secure freedom of religious beliefs. However, shortly after they came, they refused to extend religious freedom to those in their communities with differing religious beliefs.

The Civil War was fought because Americans failed to recognize their responsibilities to grant freedom to all, he said.

Rev. Wolford cautioned that the bicentennial must be a time not only to be thankful for the past but to be mindful of the responsibility for the future.

He received a hearty ovation for his forceful message.

The first "firecracker" display took place in the Mahan Building beginning at 3 p.m. Ten finalists in the Little Miss Firecracker contest lined the platform with master of ceremonies, Jaycee Dale Butler.

Butler introduced each of the young contestants and conducted a brief interview before the panel of five judges.

When the smoke cleared, Miss Mary Chrisman was Little Miss Firecracker, 1976. She was crowned by the immediate past contest winner Kim Pentzer. Miss Chrisman is the daughter of Mrs. Beverly Chrisman,

Community's most elaborate celebration

Village in full 'bloom'

BLOOMINGBURG — This Fayette County community was indeed in full "bloom" Saturday as residents participated in the most elaborate celebration on record in marking the nation's 200th anniversary Saturday.

The village was decorated with numerous flags and banners and the activities were launched with a garden tractor pull, sponsored by the Bloomingburg Presbyterian Church youth class, in the Lions Club Park.

Ten present or past village residents were enshrined in the Bloomingburg Hall of Fame during ceremonies held at the town hall. Approximately 100 persons attended the ceremony.

Those inducted included four living members in the community. They are William F. Purcell and his sister, Florence Purcell, both religious leaders in the community, and Elton B. Elliott and Gilbert H. Biddle, long-time educators in Bloomingburg.

Purcell is a retired banker, civic leader and served as clerk of the village board of education more than 30 years. Miss Purcell is retired head nurse at Fayette County Memorial Hospital. She was a nurse for more than 50 years.

Elliott taught at the Bloomingburg School for nearly 40 years, and Biddle served the Bloomingburg School District for 43 years as a coach, teacher, principal and superintendent.

Others enshrined were Solomon Bowers, founder of the village in 1815; the Rev. William Dickey, founder of the village Presbyterian Church in the 1800s; Henry Casey, a Civil War veteran who won the Congressional Medal of Honor for action at Vicksburg; John Wrobbel, a Spanish-American and World War I veteran who operated the largest independent bakery of its kind in the U. S. here at one time; Humphrey Jones, a lawyer, farmer and member of the state legislature; and Marion Woodfork, a Vietnam veteran killed in a 1974 auto accident in Columbus. Woodfork, whose father, Harry, is a member of the village board of public affairs, won the Bronze Star for heroism in Vietnam.

Robert E. Grim, chairman of the Bloomingburg Bicentennial Commission, served as master of ceremonies for the hall of fame inductions. He read a bicentennial poem written by Everett Milstead of Washington C. H. Grim reviewed the accomplishments of each of the 10 inductees and a plaque for each person was mounted on the town hall wall.

Bloomingburg Mayor Max E. Grim presented each of the four living hall of fame members with a personal medallion encribed with their name and the date of their enshrinement.

A bicentennial treasure hunt attracted about 200 treasure hunters. Between $100 and $500 was paid out as treasure hunters redeemed special tokens hidden at certain hunting grounds throughout the village. The tokens were redeemed for new bicentennial coins including silver dollars, and the new two dollar bill.

The highlight of the day was the parade, the largest ever held in Bloomingburg with 45 units participating. Mrs. Patti L. Jenkins was the parade committee chairman and routed the parade along Main Street from the Bloomingburg Elementary School to Midland Avenue and along Wayne Street back to the school where it dispersed. The parade was escorted by a cruiser from the Fayette County Sheriff's Department. The Homer Lawson Post of the American Legion provided the color guard and the parade was led by the grand marshal Paul Warfield, of the Cleveland Browns. Warfield rode in a 1918 Model T Ford touring car owned and driven by Red Arthur. Mayor Grim followed the grand marshal in the parade in a red, white and blue racing car owned by Arthur.

A large trophy was awarded for the best float. The trophy went to the Yatesville Producers.

Approximately 3,000 people lined the streets of Bloomingburg, to view the parade. After the parade, Warfield met with the four Hall of Fame members who had been the honored guests on a reviewing platform in front of the Bloomingburg Town Hall. He then spent nearly an hour signing autographs and being photographed with parade spectators.

His brother, Joseph, 13 and a neighbor, Kenneth Gohs, 14, suffered multiple burns and cuts.

Reagan sets TV talk

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Republican presidential candidate Ronald Reagan says he hopes his appearance on national television tonight will persuade uncommitted GOP delegates to vote for him.

"It's an important speech," the former California governor said Monday before taping the half-hour talk at a Hollywood studio.

He said President Ford's television exposure at Bicentennial events Sunday and Monday had nothing to do with his decision to present his nationwide message.

"We decided a long time ago to do this," Reagan said.

"Kansas City is drawing close and there are a lot of uncommitted delegates. I would have liked to have made the taping closer to the convention, but we had to take the time when it was available."

According to an Associated Press survey, Reagan has 976 delegates to Ford's 1,004 with 179 uncommitted and 98 delegates yet to be selected. A total of 1,130 delegate votes are needed to win the Republican nomination.

Stock list up again

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market pushed ahead today, continuing the rally it began late last week.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose about a point to just below the 1,001 level in the early going.

Gainers took a 5-2 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said the market drew support from a steady trend in interest rates.

At outdoor drama in Chillicothe

Costumes for a family of 100

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio — Imagine clothing a family of 100, and keeping 2,000 items mended and clean. Now imagine making each one by hand. Sounds like grounds for divorce? Nope. It's just a daily routine for Pamela Schuelke Johnson, costume designer for "Tecumseh," the outdoor historical drama in Chillicothe, Ohio.

The 25-year-old blonde has designed costumes since her late teens. "I more or less fell into costume designing," she remembered.

While majoring in history at Mary Washington College, she took an elective drama course. When the professor asked if she could sew or draw a pattern, she said "Yes." With Pam's love for sewing (she began at age six), and her background in history, she was a natural. She was soon designing costumes for most of the college's plays.

At the same time, hundreds of miles away, plans were underway for the first season of southern Ohio's epic drama, "Tecumseh," and Dr. David Weiss, director of the 1973 production, was looking for a costume designer. Running across some of Pam's work, Dr. Weiss asked her to submit some sketches for the drama. He liked what he saw and recommended her to "Tecumseh" producer.

Starting from scratch, Pam combed the rare book section of the University of Virginia library, and New York's Museum of the American Indian, while collecting her own massive files at home. The result was 150 costumes; beautiful and unquestionably authentic. That was three years ago. Today, her costumes include 300 complete outfits, comprised of over 2,000 separate articles.

But designing costumes is only the beginning of the work for Pam and her five-member staff. When "Tecumseh" begins its nationwide auditions each September, costume measurement sheets go along. Each actor is measured for 51 separate costumes. "If it doesn't fit, make it fit!" is the customer's motto in early June, when the 300 costumes finally meet the 100 actors.

Another problem that would make any mother shudder concerns the drama's battle scenes. Both the American and British soldiers march into battle in beautiful white trousers. But when the battle is over all 50 uniforms return to Pam and her staff. Add a little rain just before performance, and you've got a muddy mess that defies imagination. "May I have your attention," a voice blares over the backstage speakers, "All soldiers turn in your trousers to the costume shop immediately." And it's the beginning of another long night at the laundry.

During the drama's off-months, Pam combines her duties as costume designer at Madison College, Virginia, with those of a young housewife. After four summers at "Tecumseh" the off-months are easy.

BACON, LETTUCE AND TOMATO SOUP

- 1 pound bacon ends, cut into 1/2-inch squares
- 1/4 cup chopped onion
- 1/4 cup chopped celery
- Medium tomato, chopped fine
- 8-ounce can tomato sauce
- 1 teaspoon monosodium glutamate, if desired
- Pinch of pepper
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch blended with 2 cups cold water
- 2 cups shredded iceberg lettuce
- Sugar and salt to taste, if desired

In a medium saucepan over moderate heat cook the bacon, stirring often, until browned and a good deal of fat has been rendered; turn into a strainer to drain; return bacon to saucepan. Add onion and celery and cook gently until onion is wilted. Add tomato, tomato sauce, monosodium glutamate if used, pepper and cornstarch mixture; cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly, until thickened and boiling. Add lettuce; stir in sugar and salt if used; simmer about 5 minutes. Makes 4 servings. Adapted from "The Soup Cookbook" by Jack Noble Carter (Price-Stern-Sloan).

CHEESE SOUFFLE

- AUX BLANCS
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 1 cup milk
- Pinch of salt and pepper
- 6 egg whites
- 1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar
- 1 1/4 cups coarsely grated natural Swiss cheese

Butter the entire inside surface of a 1-quart souffle dish and coat it with fine dry bread crumbs. In a medium saucepan over low heat melt the butter; stir in the flour, salt and pepper. Off heat, gradually stir in the milk, keeping smooth. Cook over moderately low heat, stirring constantly, until boiling and thickened. Off heat stir in the cheese until melted; set aside to cool slightly. Beat together the egg whites and cream of tartar until they hold a stiff straight peak. Vigorously stir about one-third of the beaten egg whites into the cheese mixture to blend; fold in the remaining egg whites. Pour into the prepared souffle dish. Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven until puffed high above dish and browned — 25 minutes. Serve at once. Makes 4 servings.

St. Colman Catholic Church is setting for marriage

The Rev. Father David Petry and Rev. Allen Puffenberger performed the ceremony which united Miss Christine Black and Dennis Paul Breitigan in marriage Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock in St. Colman Catholic Church. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Black of 122 W. Market St., and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul A. Breitigan of Claremore, Okla., formerly of Washington C. H.

Altar vases held pink gladioli, blue Kilian daisies and blue carnations with pink Fuji mums. Candelabra, entwined with greenery, baby's breath and ribbon in colors of the rainbow were on either side of the altar. The pews were marked with rainbow colored bows.

Mrs. Gene Hughes, organist, presented "Cherish" — love theme from Romeo and Juliet, "Impossible Dream" — theme from Love Story, "Melody Boetique" — Demorest, "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring" — Bach, "Introduction Choral Suite Gothique" — Boellmann, "Evening Star" — Wagner, and "Traumerei" — Schumann.

For 'something old' the bride was wearing her mother's wedding gown of heavy ivory satin simply designed with full skirt that fell into a flowing train and a fitted bodice, long tapered sleeves and a keyhole neckline. For 'something new' she was wearing a long ivory veil trimmed with Belgium lace which matched the lace around the skirt and train of the wedding gown. 'Something borrowed' was a single strand of pearls, and 'something blue' was the traditional blue garter.

Miss Black carried an arrangement of gardenias and white roses in the shape of a cross.

Maid of honor for her sister was Miss Ann Black, who wore a formal length gown of colonial pink with miniature colonial bouquets patterned in the material, and she carried a long-stemmed white rose.

WASHINGTON REPORT

From
WILLIAM H. HARSHA
Representative To Congress
6th District, Ohio

The unbroken pattern of rising foreign aid giveaways was continued this week with House approval of another multi-billion-dollar foreign aid appropriations bill.

Despite what seems to be fairly widespread opposition throughout this country to the funneling of hard-earned American tax dollars to foreign governments and markets, neither a Congress nor an Administration in recent memory has been inclined to break this annoying habit.

Consequently, we have managed to justify in one way or another assistance to some 135 nations. From 1946 through 1976, American foreign aid has totaled well over $307 billion. That includes more than $122 billion as interest on what we have borrowed in order to make the massive giveaways possible.

The Fiscal Year 1977 foreign aid tab to be picked up by the taxpayers is almost $5 billion and is due, in large part, to the assorted promises made by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger during his travels through the Middle East and Africa. His "dollar diplomacy", like that of many of his predecessors, has proven far too costly and ineffective to merit either justification or support.

I opposed this foreign aid appropriations bill, as I have others in the past. They provide a classic example of poor stewardship of public funds.

On its way to approving another large chunk of foreign aid, the House refused to reduce by 40 percent the appropriation to the International Development Association. Like so many of our commitments to international agencies, we have provided 35 per cent of the overall contribution to that organization. I.D.A., in turn, has used 40 per cent of those resources for loans to India.

The Indian Government has produced a dismal record for helping that nation's poor, while it has squandered millions for nuclear development. India has moved from the world's largest democracy to a repressive state under the autocratic rule of Indira Gandhi.

Despite receiving $8 billion in American aid through the years, India has been a relentless critic of the United States and of late, has courted the favor of the Soviet Union.

One of the most serious consequences of our generous foreign aid program is a dramatic rise in foreign debt holdings. Between 1965 and 1975, these holdings jumped from over $16 billion to more than $66 billion.

Thus we see a growing loss of disposable income involved within our national debt. More than 12 per cent of the debt is owned by foreign officials institutions and citizens. In short, foreign countries are buying our debt, which certainly undermines the claims of congressional spenders that we owe our national debt to ourselves.

For example, we have given Germany $3.7 billion in aid, only to realize that today Germany owns the largest part of our national debt—to the tune of $20 billion. Other large beneficiaries of American aid, such as France and Japan, also own large portions of our federal debt.

Many of the world's nations have become industrial powers largely with American help and now conduct their financial affairs largely at our expense.

A most telling example of the dubious worth of our foreign aid program is the anti-American attitude of the Republic of Panama. Not only does the United States have a legitimate right, by treaty and otherwise, to the Panama Canal, she has also channeled almost $400 million in foreign aid to Panama.

In 1836, the stage trip from Wheeling, W. Va., to Columbus, Ohio took 22 hours.

AUCTION SCHOOL GRADUATE — Joe Patton, right, 494 N. He is an apprentice auctioneer, associated with Emerson Marting and Sons, Washington C.H.

Business news

Home building family affair

Home building has become a family affair for the Richard Snyder family on Washington-Waterloo Road.

Snyder, his wife Glenna and their 24-year-old son Scott have recently incorporated as Snyder and Snyder Builders, Inc. The family is ready to commence construction of five homes in the Washington C. H. area.

The younger Snyder was recently employed as a construction foreman for an Akron building firm, and his father has long considered entering the building trade. Mrs. Snyder will decorate the interiors of the homes.

Snyder and Snyder Builders, Inc., will erect two homes on Yellowbud Court in the Belle Aire Subdivision and three homes in Clairmont Village off Ohio 41-S.

The Snyders themselves will do the majority of the construction work. Richard Snyder is an engineering graduate of Ohio State University. He has been a successful farmer and an employee of a Columbus public relations firm. Scott is to graduate from OSU this fall with a degree in business administration.

Residents of Fayette County for the past 26 years, the Snyders feel the Washington C. H. area will experience steady growth in the future.

Another son, Douglas, completes the family, but is not a member of the corporation. A graduate of Cincinnati University, he is currently seeking a masters degree from the Cranbrook School of Design in Detroit, Mich.

TV Viewing

By JERRY BUCK

Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Despite the cries about violence, blue skies adventure has never been very successful on television.

Footloose heroes courting danger in wide open spaces — as "Adventures in Paradise," "Route 66" and "Then Came Bronson" — have been elbowed aside by guys with six-guns and police specials.

"Although comedy and variety serve the family hour, it's difficult to find a dramatic show that serves it," said Larry Rosen, producer of CBS' "Spencer's Pilots," an upcoming aviation show with enough blue skies to last you all week.

Rosen believes the "climate is right" for this humor-leavened adventure that seeks to establish a Clark Gable-Spencer Tracy relationship between its stars, Christopher Stone and Todd Susman. Gene Evans plays Spencer, the gruff head of the charter flying service.

"I think the TV audience has tired somewhat of the proverbial cop show," he said. "What is inherent in the cop show is you have a life and death situation. If you like the character you'll go to that show to see how he will handle a problem.

"What's unique here is that our guys don't carry badges. They have to figure out a way to get out of jeopardy using their wits, cunning and flying ability."

The family hour, inaugurated a year ago by the networks to cut back sex and violence in the early evening, has proven a quagmire for series. Not many have survived.

If "Spencer's Pilots" is to go beyond its first 12 episodes it must, like "The $6 Million Man" and "The Bionic Woman," provide enough derring-do to attract youngsters without driving away the adults.

Rosen, who says the charter pilot background is a first for TV, called on his own flying experience for the show. The personalities and character names are molded after fliers he has known. His enthusiasm for aviation apparently is contagious: the cast went out and took flying lesson.

"What we've tried to do is design a fixed base of operations for the show," Rosen said. "Spencer Aviation rents planes, teaches flying, flies charters and ferries equipment and supplies."

"Because of this we're able to get them into such situations as flying explosives or prisoners or doing crop dusting. These are two guys who fly for a living and the stories will arise from that."

Production begins Wednesday, July 7, and will follow a technique confined so far in television to three-camera comedy series filmed before an audience. It will devote one day a week to reading and rehearsal.

"That's unheard of in this kind of show," Rosen said. "But it will be invaluable in helping the guys find their characters and in seeing what works and what doesn't."

Rubber talks recessed

CLEVELAND (AP) — The federally-assisted negotiations in the ongoing rubber industry dispute have been indefinitely recessed. The strike will enter its eleventh week at midnight tonight.

In a statement made Tuesday morning around 1:30 a.m., Labor Secretary William J. Usery said he and the federal mediators would return to Washington later Tuesday.

United Rubber Workers international president Peter Bommarrito said the union is still scheduled to meet with Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. at 2 p.m. Tuesday afternoon, but without federal mediators.

Regarding the marathon weekend negotiating sessions, Usery said, "We did make a lot of headway. But we haven't reached an agreement as of yet."

He added, "Progress was made both structurally and substantively." Usery said the meetings were marked by "hard, good faith bargaining."

Variety of holiday incidents probed

A Washington C. H. man was arrested Monday by Fayette County sheriff's deputies and charged with possession of marijuana after the car he was a passenger in had been stopped Monday when the occupants were observed throwing firecrackers at passing cars.

According to Fayette County Sheriff's Sgt. William R. Crooks, Frankie Merritt Jr., 19, of 124 Forest St., was arrested for possession of marijuana after he reportedly dropped a bag of the substance in the back seat of a car he was told to vacate.

The car had been stopped at 12:10 a.m. Monday after Sgt. Crooks observed the occupants throwing firecrackers at passing cars as it traveled along W. Court Street near Hinde Street. Another passenger in the car, a 17-year-old Washington C. H. youth, was charged with discharging fireworks.

Washington C. H. police officers investigated numerous incidents over the same period, including a reported occurrence in which a Washington C. H. man was bitten.

Charles W. Pierson, 3700 Coil Lane, told police officers that as he was attempting to break up a fight between two men, he was bitten. The incident allegedly occurred at 11:40 a.m. Monday in a residence at 803 Van Deman St.

Paul Short, 39, of New Holland, was arrested on a private warrant filed by his mother, Sada L. Short of 803 Van Deman St., after he reportedly struck her following an argument between the two at 6 p.m. Saturday. The incident occurred at Mrs. Short's home, and she was later treated and released from Fayette County Memorial Hospital for injuries sustained from the incident.

Linda Miller, 9703 Washington-New Martinsburg Road, told police officers that as she was in Lawson's dairy store, North Street, she was approached by her husband who said, "If you're not at Lake Wahoo tomorrow, I'll get you and your baby." As a result of the 6:30 p.m. Saturday incident, Ms. Miller filed a charge of aggravated menacing against Steven E. Miller, 23, of Greenfield.

A number of tools, three fishing rods and a battery, all valued at $100 were reported stolen from the 223 Circle Avenue former residence of George Hall, 799 McLean St. The incident is believed to have occurred sometime Sunday.

George Stevens, 521 Gibbs Ave., told police officers that $20 worth of bottles and tools were removed from his front porch sometime Friday or Saturday.

Kathryn Bryant, 50, of Dayton, was arrested at 2:47 a.m. Sunday by Washington C. H. police officers after she reportedly became loud and abusive to an investigating police officer. She was charged with disorderly conduct and resisting arrest. She and another Dayton woman, Faye Howell, 50, were arrested for resisting arrest after they reportedly refused to leave the car upon request by the police officer, and had to be physically removed.

Denise Sanders, 7, of 533 Lewis St., was treated and released from Fayette County Memorial Hospital after incurring a dog bite at 9:30 p.m. Saturday near her residence.

The Fayette County Sheriff's Department received a report of a car tire being slashed while the vehicle was parked on the Fayette County Fairgrounds sometime between 9:30 and 11 p.m. Sunday. The car belonged to Mrs. Russell Garringer, 39, Miami Trace Road.

By The Associated Press
High pressure continues its hold over the state and is expected to give Ohio mostly fair skies through Wednesday with highs in the 80s and lows in the 60s.

Somewhat unstable air passing over the state this afternoon and tonight was expected to touch off a few scattered showers and thundershowers late this afternoon and this evening.

Fog cut visibility in many spots along the Ohio River this morning and travelers advisories were issued for the Cincinnati area. The rest of the state reported clear skies and mild temperatures.

Highway patrol highly visible

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — If you took a drive in Ohio over the holiday weekend, chances are you saw a state patrol car parked beside the road or idling in the median strip.

That's the way the patrol wants it, according to Capt. Robert W. Dunbar. The "concentrated enforcement" program is aimed at dotting the familiar white cars along the state's highways. It keeps drivers on their toes and lets them know help is handy, should they need it.

"The concentrated enforcement program is aimed at getting drivers to slow down," Dunbar said. "If you see one of our cars, you're going to assess what you're doing and how fast you're going."

Citizen band operators aid the program by reporting the locations of patrol cars to other CB operators, Dunbar said. "When they call out locations of one of our cars, people slow down. That's the intention of the exposure program."

As operational inspection officer, Dunbar checks each of the patrol posts to see what they are doing and how they are doing it.

"Officers make three times as many service calls as arrests," Dunbar said.

"If you're broken down on the highway, we want you to know you'll have help in five or 10 minutes."

CB operators help the patrol here, too, he said—reporting breakdowns and accidents to the patrol. All but a handful of Ohio's patrol cars are CB-equipped. Officers respond to the formal call letters KNN3083 as well as the less formal "smokey."

The patrol's emphasis on keeping its cars handy may even save you a ticket.

"A speeding citation may require an officer to take the violator to the nearest city municipal court or a bondsman. This can tie him up for a half hour or more," Dunbar said.

Nation celebrates noisy bicentennial 4th

By JULES LOH
Associated Press Writer
Oh, what a weekend it was.
The fuse was long, too long everyone said, but when the grand Bicentennial skyrocket went off it lifted America's spirit and uncovered its pride and, at least for the moment, crowned America's good with brotherhood from sea to shining sea.
It was as if the entire nation put aside its cares and sorrows and thought at last of its own best dreams.
"After two centuries there is still something wonderful about being an American," President Ford said, standing on Thomas Jefferson's front lawn at Monticello, and the nation answered, Amen.
"If we cannot quite express it," he said, "we know what it is. You know what it is or you would not be here."

And where were you?
Americans have a way of remembering where they were at the precise moment of national trauma: Dec. 7, 1941; Nov. 22, 1963.
But in his lifetime will Thomas Gates, the American envoy in Peking, ever forget that on the Fourth of July in the year of Our Lord 1976 and the year of the Republic 200 he ate hot dogs with the members of his staff at a Ming Tomb in the world's largest Communist country?
Will any of the million surrounding the Washington Monument, ohing and aching at the grandest fireworks display in history, forget that when it was over that huge crowd, that happy throng, spontaneously burst into "God Bless America"?
Will any of the five million — five million! — who lined New York harbor and the Hudson River ever forget those majestic square-riggers and the glory of 10,000 sails along the flank of the first capital of the Republic?

Across the land, it was a Super Bowl of superlatives — the biggest, the loudest, the best and the brightest, a blur of extravaganzas months in preparation. But the surprise of the Bicentennial was the spontaneous warmth and gaiety and, yes, patriotism where the crowds assembled.
In Boston, they would remember bursting into "Happy Birthday" after listening to the Declaration of Independence read from the balcony where it was first read in that city in 1776.
In Lexington and Concord, where the fight for liberty began, they would remember a special cheeriness at the traditional children's games of hula-hoop spinning, bike racing and watermelon eating.

The same easy, happy spirit prevailed at other national shrines....
At Fort McHenry, at a booming rocket display at dawn's early light...at Gettysburg, where William Williams of The AP reported about a re-enactment: "They gave a war here and thousands of Americans came," 30,000 with picnic lunches...in Washington, the city everybody seemed to run against this year, where storytellers and puppets entertained laughing kids at West Potomac Park...in Philadelphia, where the President joined thousands for formal ceremonies at Independence Hall, and also where a subway rider broke into "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," and immediately the other riders, in all the cars, joined in....
And at other cities and hamlets across the nation, some celebrating traditionally, some gaudily, but all gaily:
In San Francisco, where they rang cable car bells;
In Kokomo, Ind., where a lusty parade featured a big red tractor pulling a float with a 10-foot ear of corn;
In Los Angeles, the city of excesses, where a bunch of kids had the bright Bicentennial idea of concocting — why not? — a 30-foot-long banana split;
In Shreveport, La., where Mildred Walker Scopes, widow of the man whose contribution to America's history became known as the Monkey Trial, sat down to lunch at a table dressed out in red, white and blue clothes;
In Sun City, Ariz., where Lewis Singer laid out $4,500 to rig his house with all 50 state flags, plus a red, white and blue cattle trough in his front yard that shoots water 20 feet in the air;
In Promontory Point, Utah, where they built two mock railroad engines facing each other just as the real ones did that day of Manifest Destiny in 1869 when the golden spike was driven;
In New Orleans, where they unveiled a bronze statue to Louis Armstrong, that pioneer of America's own music form;
On Little Diomed Island, that tiny Alaskan outpost on the Bering Strait a scant three miles from Russia, where all 130 residents turned out for blanket tossing and other Eskimo diversions;
And in gutsy Rexburg, Idaho, where on Monday, a month to the day after their town was nearly washed away by a flood, they borrowed enough floats from other towns to put on a parade.
"We aren't so hurt that we can't show our love for our country," said Marion Forsyth, who lost his home and farmzing: U.S. history, it said, shows the "suffering and difficulties that a society of class exploitation brings to many millions of working people."

But in the same Communist capital, dissident Soviet sources reported a poignant message from 14 Soviet political prisoners to the American people:

"Neither barbed wire, nor machine guns, nor watchtowers, nor guard dogs — nothing can prevent us...from being together with you on this great hour of world history."

Terror group in Frisco area reports

Bombs planted at utility sites

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The terrorist New World Liberation Front says it has planted three time bombs to go off by Saturday at two Pacific Gas & Electric Co. sites in the San Francisco Bay area.
A communique, revealed Monday and signed by the NWLF Central Command, warned PG&E employees to stay away from work until after July 10 so they won't be hurt.
A spokesman for the utility said employees should report to work and that operations would continue as usual.
At a hastily organized news conference, a member of an above-ground support group for the NWLF read the communique warning of the bombs and threatening further attacks.
Ande Lougher, of NWLF People's Information Relay-1, quoted the communique as saying three "calendar clocks are placed at two PG&E sites in the Bay Area."

"I don't think PG&E workers will lose their jobs (for staying away from work)," 25-year-old Miss Lougher said, "and if they do, that just says something for PG&E."
The terrorist group has claimed responsibility for sabotaging PG&E facilities five times since March 21, 1975.
Paul Girard, PG&E public information officer, called the warning "an insane threat."
"Operations will continue in a normal fashion," he said. "Our employees are trained to be vigilant, and we expect them to continue in that fashion."
Charles Nixon, spokesman for the Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Division of the U.S. Treasury, which is handling the case, had no immediate comment.
Groups using the name NWLF have claimed responsibility for a number of bombings, including one earlier this year at the famous Hearst Castle in San Simeon, a police car bombing in Marin County and explosions at foreign consulates and corporate offices in the San Francisco Bay area.

The NWLF's name also has appeared on death threats against newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst and bomb threats against San Francisco apartment owners who were labeled "slumlords."
Miss Lougher said the latest attack on PG&E is the terrorist group's response to the utility's failure to meet previous demands.
The NWLF has demanded that PG&E pay 50 per cent of the cost of bringing slum housing in San Francisco up to building codes. It also has demanded that the company provide free utility service to the unemployed and those over 65 forced to live on fixed incomes.

Meanwhile, in the Old World...
England, which suffered a profound decline in the world's power structure while its impudent former colony rose to the top, was, as always, civil. It celebrated the American Bicentennial with more than 100 special events across the country, including fireworks, concerts, picnics, softball games and a round of furious Frisbee. Meanwhile, Queen Elizabeth, who occupies the throne the colonies broke away from 200 years before, was on her way to pay her respects to the aging upstart.
Official Russia was almost civil. President Nikolai Podgorny sent congratulations to President Ford. But Pravda, the Soviet Communist party newspaper, couldn't resist a dialectic

Americans feel good on holiday

By SAUL PETT
AP Special Correspondent
It turned out to be a big, warm surprise party. We surprised ourselves.
There was a disposition, a hunger, to feel good. Not just well, but good. We felt good.
At long last, the grim clichés of more than a decade — "The American malaise," "The sick society" — were scarcely heard in the land, praise God.
There were, here and there, voices of protest and gloom and guilt, but they were easy to turn off or tune out this day. Can you forgive us, Jane Fonda? Were the blacks less reproachful, the Indians less militant? It would seem so.

Even the increasingly assertive American Woman appeared to pause in her march toward full equality and seemed less disposed to belittle the American Male. Can you forgive them, Gloria Steinem?
In all the land, there seemed to be a kind of a truce in fights and causes. Even the critical young seemed less critical. Nobody profaned the cathedral. And did you see all those young people jumping with joy at the Boston Pops concert led by that loveable American square, Arthur Fiedler? Imagine, if you can, American adolescents waving flags and dancing happily to "The Stars and Stripes Forever."
Somehow, after all the ballyhoo, we had feared someone would muck it up with the black headlines of violence or a torrent of bad taste born of commercial greed. But they didn't. As the tourist said at the pageant of Valley Forge, "It is history and darned if they ain't doing it right."

Darned if we didn't.
In an apartment overlooking the Hudson River and the greatest splash of sail since Trafalgar, New Yorkers watched from boxed off terraces. Someone started singing and a contagion spread among people who could not see each other and from the whole glassy face of this soulless, modern building, from the individual warren pens of New Yorkers famous for not seeing or hearing or knowing each other, there came "God Bless America."
In the cloudbursts of wiggly flames that broke all around her, could you fail to look at the Statue of Liberty with the eyes of a frightened Russian immigrant or the heart of a boy from Iowa returning from a war that was won and was good to win?
The joy of the rockets red glare may not have given proof through the night that it would last. But for a moment, it was there, pure, spontaneous, undiluted, unashamed. Didn't it feel good feeling good?

Individually, this kind of eruption of elation has been known to happen to a city, as it did to Pittsburgh when the Pirates won the pennant, as it does to Centerville when the high school basketball team wins the state title, as it does to a research lab when the old man finally wins a Nobel.
But for a whole nation to blow its top short of a war ending is singular, indeed. What had we won this time but the renewal of self respect, even pride, in the perspective of 200 years?

PARADE GRAND MARSHAL — B.E. Kelley, an author, retired newspaperman and curator of the Fayette County Museum, is pictured with his wife, Elva, riding in an antique auto owned by Eddie Kirk of Washington C.H. The 92-year-old Kelley served as grand marshal of Sunday's bicentennial parade in Washington C.H. He and his wife donned old-fashioned costumes for the celebration. Kelley, 823 Washington Ave., retired six years after 70 years in the newspaper business and helped organize the Fayette County Historical Society more than 30 years ago.

CANALS, RAILROADS, AND ROCKETS

By T. E. Roberts

When we consider the misfortunes of the Penn Central and other American railroads these days, we might look back to a time when a more leisurely kind of transportation was the fashion.

Some people think that one of the most costly mistakes ever made in Ohio's history was to allow the railroads to supersede the canals as a major means of transporting raw materials, manufactured goods, and passengers.

One of these canals, about which very little is known nowadays, was the Mahoning. Originally called the Pennsylvania & Ohio Canal (the name under which it was officially incorporated), the Mahoning was promoted by merchants and political leaders in the Western Reserve as early as 1824. In 1827, the state granted a private charter for its construction, and state engineers provided plans for a line about 90 miles long.

The Mahoning Canal

linked together Akron and Beaver, Pennsylvania via the towns of Ravenna, Warren, and Youngstown. Completed in 1840, this canal was responsible for helping to make Cleveland a major center of manufacturing and coal exporting. The coal transported from the Brier Hill district near Youngstown to Cleveland helped make this growing port one of the principal fueling stops for steamers on Lake Erie.

The farmers of the Western Reserve also found a new means of getting their produce — especially dairy products such as cheese and butter — to new markets in a much faster and more comfortable way than the primitive roads of the 1840's would allow.

At the same time, the Mahoning Canal threatened to make Cleveland far less important as an entry port for manufactured goods brought from eastern markets via Lake Erie. With a new connection to Pittsburgh via the Mahoning Canal, farmers and other consumers in Northeast Ohio found ready access to such goods as farm machinery and household products.

Travel on canals in the 1840's was a pleasant experience for most passengers, but not everyone was so enchanted as we might suppose in these days of air pollution and crowded freeways. One traveller complained that "Very frequently we were annoyed by the stench from distilleries and pig sties along the canal, at some of which several hundred hogs were in pens, fattening for market, on pig sties."

Though the iron horse was already beginning to compete with the canals for state aid as early as 1832, the Ohio Railroad posed little threat in 1838. In that year it went bankrupt, and the State of Ohio's investment of nearly a quarter of a million dollars netted the grand profit of "one set of small car-wheels and axles, one locomotive steam pile driver, and one steam saw mill."

Such bad luck for the railroads was not permanent, however. Soon this major and much noisier competitor of the Mahoning and other canals was making tremendous progress. In 1857 a railroad that ran the same route as the Mahoning purchased the canal and in effect put it out of business at the same time.

While today many people feel nostalgic about the grand days of such trains as the 20th-Century Limited or the Super Chief, perhaps a hundred years ago memories of the Ohio canals excited similar feelings. Maybe in the year 2076 we'll feel nostalgic about moon rockets.

New front opened in Lebanese war

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Cease-fire talks were postponed indefinitely as the Lebanese leftist-Palestinian guerrilla command reported it opened a new front against the Christians in northern Lebanon.

The leftists' Beirut Radio said Moslem forces drove south into Christian territory below Tripoli and seized the village of Chekka, 40 miles north of Beirut. The broadcast said the leftist forces also advanced Monday to within four miles of Amchit, the site of the Christian radio station 20 miles north of the capital.
The Moslems said they captured a string of coastal fishing and farming villages along the way.
The Christian radio denied Chekka had fallen.
Fighting was also reported at a dozen points around the Christian enclave between Beirut and Tripoli. Reports in Beirut said more than 100 persons had been killed, mostly in the fighting at Chekka.

Arab League Secretary-General Mahmoud Riad said in Damascus that the meeting scheduled for Monday between Lebanese Christian and Moslem leaders was put off indefinitely "because of the crazy escalation of the fighting."
Palestinian guerrilla leader Yasir Arafat met with representatives of the Christian Phalange party and Syria all Sunday night. Riad said all three factions had agreed to begin detailed negotiations on a cease-fire and settlement of the 14-month-old Lebanese war on Wednesday.
As the battle for the Palestinians' Tal Zaatar refugee camp on the southeast side of Beirut continued, a Red Cross convoy of 19 trucks tried to remove about 300 wounded from the camp. But the convoy turned back when both sides broke an agreement to stop shooting during the evacuation, a spokesman said.
After two weeks of hard fighting, the Palestinians were reported still holding a central section of underground bunkers and tunnels in the 74-acre camp. The Christians claimed they were about to complete their conquest of the camp.

Nutrition program marks birthday

The Senior Nutrition Program of Fayette County celebrated its third anniversary recently at the First Presbyterian Church, where the group meets five days a week for lunch.

Mrs. Edna Naylor and Mrs. Judy Clark, who launched the program in 1973 at the Washington C.H. Middle School cafeteria, planned an anniversary celebration which included the first Senior Nutrition Band composed of Gladys Johns, Harry Stoughton, Alberta Grabill and Marjorie Crider, assisted by Mrs. Billie Underwood.

During the daily meetings some type of recreational program is provided for the 85 or 90 people who are presently participating in the program. They are transported to the church by the Community Action Outreach workers in a 15-passenger van. The van, which was purchased with state funds, is chauffeured by Rita Buzzard, who delivers three bus loads of people to the church every day. Seventy-one-year-old Charles Whaley, one of the participants, donates four hours each day to assist passengers on and off the bus. Whaley has been providing the service for over a year.

During the festive anniversary party, several senior citizens voiced their opinions of the program.

Fern McKinney, who has been in the program for almost two years, said, "After my husband died, this brought me out of a rut. This program has helped me pull through and I love it!"

"When I heard about the daily lunches (which are free but donations are accepted) I thought that it was too good to be true! This program is for the rich and the poor," stated Margaret Brodt.

Albert Summers, who is one of the eight original members left in the program, commented, "This is the 263rd meal that I've eaten here. I think this program is grand," Summers maintains a daily dairy, which explains his accounting for the lunches he's eaten at the church.

Madge Gibson, who attends the luncheons with her husband, Ralph, has been involved in Senior Nutrition for two years. "I like to eat!" she laughed, then added, "It's nice for older people to come here and get acquainted."

The following women who are involved in the program, recently made a bicentennial quilt which will be on display at Holthouse Furniture, and up for sale. Ruth Mathis, Anna Roberts, Hazel Havens, Margaret Brodt, Leona McGinnis, Anna Seymour, Pearl Stoughton, Fairy Exline, and Hazel Miller. This group has made 13 quilts, all told, nine of which have been sold for the Senior Nutrition Building Fund. Mrs. Brodt and Pearl Stoughton bound all 13 quilts.

Nation finds food prices higher

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Higher prices for a wide range of food items helped boost supermarket bills during June, an Associated Press marketbasket survey shows. The rate of increase during the first six months of the year, however, was well within government predictions for 1976.

The AP drew up a random list of 15 commonly purchased food and nonfood items, checked the price at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973, and has rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month.

Among the results of the latest survey:

—The marketbasket total rose at the checklist store in nine of the cities surveyed, up an average of just over 2 per cent. The bill declined at the checklist store in four cities, down a little more than half a per cent. On an over-all basis, the marketbasket bill rose 1.3 per cent during June.

—The situation was an improvement over May, when the marketbasket bill was up at the checklist store in all 13 cities, rising an average of 4.2 per cent.

—Decreases earlier in the year helped offset May and June boosts. A comparison of prices at the start of July with those at the beginning of 1976 showed that the marketbasket bill at the checklist store was up in nine cities and down in four for an over-all increase of about 1 per cent. The U.S. Department of Agriculture has predicted that food prices alone will rise between 2 and 5 per cent this year.

—A comparison of prices at the start of July with those a year earlier showed the AP marketbasket bill was up at the checklist store in each city, rising about 8 per cent.

—Almost all the June increase was due to boosts on food items. Only five of 57 items that went up in price were in nonfood categories in the AP survey.

—Pork chop prices rose again, up in seven cities. The price of a pound of pork chops went up in nine cities during May. The increases reflect higher prices paid to farmers for hogs and can be traced to the small corn crop of 1974. When grain prices went up, farmers reduced their herds and supplies still have not been rebuilt.

—On the bright side, the price of frozen orange juice concentrate — one of the few items which has remained generally steady during the past few years — declined in five cities, down an average 16.2 per cent.

The items on the AP checklist were: chopped chuck, center cut pork chops, frozen orange juice concentrate, coffee, paper towels, butter, Grade-A medium white eggs, creamy peanut butter, laundry detergent, fabric softener, tomato sauce, chocolate chip cookies, milk, all-beef frankfurters and granulated sugar.

The cities checked were: Albuquerque, N.M., Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, R.I., Salt Lake City and Seattle.

ADC rolls stable during month

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The number of persons on Aid to Dependent Children rolls remained stable in June, but the number of those recipients with unemployed fathers is rising.

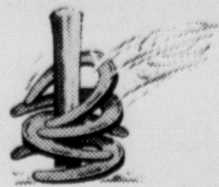

The latter figure is up 1,465 over May's total of 93,993 and at a new high. ADC Director Kwagyr Aggrey said economic developments and loss of unemployment compensation accounts for the increase.

PARTICIPANT — Eighty-eight-year-old Vina Wood, a participant in the Senior Nutrition Program of Fayette County, arrives at the First Presbyterian Church for the anniversary party.

Does Tobacco Harm Hearing?

I work in a speech and hearing center as an undergraduate volunteer. For a long time I have wondered if tobacco can, in any way, harm the hearing mechanism. This was discussed the other day. No firm conclusion was arrived at. — Miss F.S., Pa.

Dear Miss S.:

Since the turn of the century there has been a great deal of speculation about the possible relationship between nicotine and damage to the highly sensitive inner ear mechanism. Tiny hair cells, responsible for the transmission of sound to the brain, are located in the cochlea. This organ controls the transmission of sound.

It is well established that nicotine is a toxic substance. It is also well established that nicotine can narrow the blood vessels in all parts of the body, including those in the middle and inner ear.

Experimental studies in laboratory animals have shown very definite evidence of the toxic effect of tobacco and nicotine on the vascular structure responsible for good hearing.

Dizziness and noises in the head have also been attributed to tobacco and nicotine concentration in some instances. It has also been suggested that smoke alone, as a pollutant, can irritate the lining of the nose and the eustachian tube which leads from the back of the nose to the middle ear.

Non-smokers who are trapped in an area polluted by cigarette smoke may also be affected.

The evidence points to the fact that tobacco, undoubtedly, can have an adverse effect on the hearing mechanism.

Is ringworm contagious? — Mrs. G.F., Minn.

Dear Mrs. F.:

This condition is caused by a fungus and can be transmitted from one person to another. It is not nearly as communicable as viruses and bacteria. Yet precautions should be taken to avoid using the towels or other personal effects of someone who is known to have ringworm.

Are there any dangers to dyeing the hair? — Mrs. T.U., N.J.

Dear Mrs. U.:

Hair dyes are chemicals and can be irritating to a highly allergic or sensitive skin. In most establishments the process of dyeing is performed by people who have had a great deal of experience with specific dyes. They almost always test the skin of the scalp of a new client to determine possible sensitivity.

Raisins may take new hue

WASHINGTON (AP) —Those chewy blue-black raisins kids like for snacks may be mostly greenish-amber in color someday if a new process for making them turns out to be profitable for growers.

For centuries, raisins traditionally have been made by hand-picking ripe grapes and drying them naturally in the sun. But the Agriculture Department says this method is becoming so expensive that new ways are needed.

One method, first used in Australia in 1967, involves drying the grapes on the vine and then harvesting mechanically for further processing. To speed-up the vine drying, however, the grapes are sprayed with chemical solutions that help produce the greenish-amber hues.

A 24-page report on raisin production in California, where most are produced, says the greenish-amber varieties are also sweeter than the traditional kind, something some consumers apparently don't like.

Based on 1974 studies, the report said the dried-on-the-vine method would have been more costly than the traditional natural way and another experimental "continuous tray" method. But economists said future increases in labor costs or lower chemical costs might make vine drying practicable.

One of the authors of the report, Robert V. Enochian of USDA's research center at Albany, Calif., said in a telephone interview that the government has been helping finance the studies on raisin production for about four years, including research grants totaling about $100,000. He said there are about 5,000 raisin producers in California.

Captain promoted

CINCINNATI (AP) — Captain Ernest Wagner, 65, commander of the Delta Queen on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers since 1962, has been promoted to the rank of commodore by the Delta Queen Steamboat Co.

The promotion carries with it the command of the new Mississippi Queen which will go into overnight passenger service later this year.

Commodore Wagner will be in command of both ships, the only inland water overnight passenger boats in the United States.

Captain Gabriel Chengery, 28, Pittsburgh, Pa., mate and alternate master of the Delta Queen for two years, will replace Wagner on the older ship, the company said.

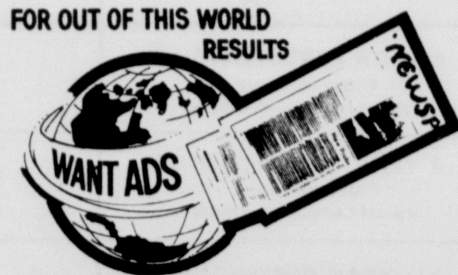

The new, all steel Mississippi Queen currently is undergoing shake down trials at Jeffersonville, Ind., and will make its first appearance at Cincinnati July 25.

4 men to join
ag hall of fame

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Four men will be inducted into the Ohio Agricultural Hall of Fame during ceremonies Aug. 27 at the state fairgrounds, the Ohio Agricultural Council announced.

John H. Dunlap, of Williamsport, an agribusinessman, and John D. Siebenthaler of Dayton, a horticulturist, will be on hand for the ceremonies.

Posthumous awards will be presented to the families of A.Z. Baker of Kinsman, a livestock marketing pioneer, and Joel S. Coffey of Columbus, a pioneer in swine scientific production.

Man, did we have fun last week with the new Kodak Instant camera. We made most of the mistakes that the books says not to make but, believe it or not, we got some good shots anyway.

Our first picture was of Dan Bradshaw and K. C. Davis and they both came out looking saintly, no kidding. We next turned the camera on Tom Payton — he didn't look saintly. But this Kodak EK4 Instant Camera is really a fun camera and I think it pretty well insures that instant pix are the way of the future for snapshots.

How does the EK4 stack up against the Polaroid Pronto? Gee, at this point that's hard to say. There's plenty of room for both systems in the market. Kodak's entry is less money. But the Pronto isn't much more, and as of now it belongs to a larger family, though we look for Kodak to bring out more instant units as production gets under way. Both are fun cameras and for a party or picnic there's nothing better to keep the fun going — and to keep to remember the good times. Maybe you should be thinking about one of these instant cameras.

Opening lead — king of clubs.

Some hands have built-in traps. Here is such a case. West starts out with the K-A of clubs. Declarer ruffs, of course, but what should he do next?

If South is one of those happy-go-lucky individuals, it does not take him long to go down one. He plays the ace of trumps, West showing out, and that is the end of the party. Now there is nothing South can do to stop East from making a trump trick.

Winners Tuesday night at the Washington Duplicate Bridge Club were Mrs. Charles Fabb and Martin Stark with a score of 68. Mrs. Larry Coil and Mrs. J.C. Wright took second place with 67, and Bruce Strickling and J.C. Wright were third with 64. There were five tables in play.

Competition for the second quarter participation award concluded Tuesday. A tie for the award resulted between Bruce Strickling, 136 River Rd., and Mrs. Dorothy Henry of Sabina. Since Strickling is a previous winner, Mrs. Henry will receive the second quarter trophy.
